

Organization of Fish and Wildlife Information Managers Web-Based Technical Application Award 2009

Application Form

The Organization of Fish and Wildlife Information Managers (OFWIM) Web-Based Technical Application Award recognizes excellence in the development and deployment of a fish or wildlife information-related technical application on the Web.

Applications will be evaluated for their usability, innovation, use of current technology, success in meeting their stated goals, and relevance to fisheries and wildlife information technology.

Eligibility for this award is open, but the responsible party(ies) must have retained complete creative control over the website and technical application. Applications may be for projects completed by individuals or agencies/organizations; however, preference will be given to those projects that are collaborative in nature. Applicants are encouraged to submit their own work or the work of others.
